this comprehensive international and comparative account reconceptualises the public domain providing new insights into copyright and copyright law reform

this book is about enforcing privacy and data protection it demonstrates different approaches regulatory legal and technological to enforcing privacy if regulators do not enforce laws or regulations or codes or do not have the resources political support or wherewithal to enforce them they effectively eviscerate and make meaningless such laws or regulations or codes no matter how laudable or well intentioned in some cases however the mere existence of such laws or regulations combined with a credible threat to invoke them is sufficient for regulatory purposes but the threat has to be credible as some of the authors in this book make clear it is a theme that runs throughout this book carrots and soft law need to be backed up by sticks and hard law the authors of this book view privacy enforcement as an activity that goes beyond regulatory enforcement however in some sense enforcing privacy is a task that befalls to all of us privacy advocates and members of the public can play an important role in combatting the continuing intrusions upon privacy by governments intelligence agencies and big companies contributors to this book including regulators privacy advocates academics smes a member of the european parliament lawyers and a technology researcher share their views in the one and only book on enforcing privacy the women peace and security wps agenda is celebrated as a landmark global framework for achieving gender equality in peace and security governance its power is visible in two decades of united nations resolutions national action plans regional initiatives and countless activist academic and philanthropic projects yet despite this vitality it is haunted by failure as a lack of political will and stubborn patriarchal resistance frustrate its promise this book offers a groundbreaking critical account of the wps agenda exploring its evolution in relation to the wider politics of global governance and feminism paul kirby and laura j shepherd argue that wps is not a settled cohesive policy but a field in flux defined and disrupted by a growing number of national supranational subnational and transnational agents who in turn act on an expanding catalogue of threats from climate change to homophobia challenging traditional boundaries of peace and security kirby and shepherd reconceptualize wps as a policy ecosystem tracing interaction and contestation around the agenda across levels from the un security council to military alliances to feminist activists they combine analysis of a vast dataset of policy documents with key informant interviews and close readings of diplomacy statecraft the politics of indigeneity counterinsurgency antimilitarism human rights and the arms trade across the first twenty years of wps far reaching and incisive governing the feminist peace poses a provocative question what if we abandoned the idea of the wps agenda as a unified political project altogether
